Whether sampling the new wines of the spring, picnicking in the vineyards or hunting autumnal truffles, staying at Property 1605885694 allows you to enjoy Piedmont across all its wonderful seasons.

Most of the visitors to the Piedmont are drawn to the many wine-tasting opportunities: this wine region produces the largest number of DOCG wines, the best quality you can get according to Italian law. Another great highlight of Piedmont is the food. Some of the cuisine you are likely to see on the menu includes Piemontese beef, home-made agnolotti, hazelnut based desserts and the best specialty of all, white truffles from Alba, which is known as the center of gastronomy in this area.

When not making the most of the food and wine, take time to explore this relaxed and spectacular area. Visit medieval villages, many with historic castles, cycle through the charming countryside, follow walking trails through the vineyards or visit the local towns. Don't miss Turin, the capital of Piedmont, rich in history and culture.
